Biden calmly tells reporters at a news conference Tuesday that he will move ahead as if Trump had already conceded.

WASHINGTON, DC - President-elect Joe Biden said Tuesday he is moving forward with his transition plans, despite President Trump and GOP allies refusing to acknowledge the election results.

His remarks came on a day punctuated with congratulatory calls from heads of state and trading on Wall Street that has already factored in a Biden presidency and a divided Congress -- the latest signs that while most congressional Republicans are sticking with Trump's claims of voter fraud, the rest of the world is moving on and preparing for the 46th president.
