Many Wisconsin restaurants are still struggling due to supply chain challenges, inflationary costs, and workforce challenges as the economy rebounds.

MADISON — On Monday Gov. Tony Evers signed Assembly Bill 717 to assist Wisconsin restaurants as they continue to rebound and recover.

“Wisconsin’s restaurants play critical roles our communities, bringing people together, bolstering tourism and travel, and providing unique experiences to residents and visitors each day,” said Gov. Evers. “They’ve shown amazing resilience, ingenuity, and flexibility over the last two years, but I know it hasn’t been easy and many are still struggling due to supply chain challenges, inflationary costs, and workforce challenges our state has faced for years. I am glad to sign these bills today to help relieve a little bit of stress and worry for business owners as they head into tax season.”
