Big corporations are taking advantage of Citizens United, giving directly to political parties and legislative campaign committees in Wisconsin.

MADISON - For the first time in 100 years, corporations can give directly to political parties and legislative campaign committees in Wisconsin, and they're taking full advantage of this. See which ones have given the most so far:

We were struck a couple of specific corporate gifts.

First, the Potawatomi tribe gave much more this year than in years past:
