STATEWIDE - We discuss the latest COVID-19 pandemic news, including this week’s Congressional action. Is the $2 Trillion relieve package the biggest corporate giveaway in American history, or vital help for working Americans and small businesses in a time of dire need? We welcome Susannah Dyen from Caring Across Generations to talk about the Texas Lt. Governor’s comments that grandparents would be willing to die to preserve America’s economy. We close by updating the latest on the troubled April 7th spring election,changes to election procedure imposed by a federal judge, and growing opposition to holding this election during a state lockdown, especially without an inclusive and accessible vote-by-mail system.
