

MADISON - We already knew that Sen. Ron Johnson plans to support Donald Trump as the Republican nominee, but it's his support for a candidate right here at home that raises even more serious questions on his judgement.

Sen. Johnson has now rushed to defend extremist Rebecca Bradley, who infamously penned blatantly homophobic
sexist
, and abhorrent
comments about the very Wisconsinites over whom she would preside. Yet rather than condemning Bradley, Sen. Johnson praised her as exactly the type of person he wants in a judge.

LISTEN to the clip and read the transcript of Johnson's comments below:

[A UDIO]

JOHNSON: If you ever ask yourself the question, how come we don't have more good people run for public office? Go no further than take a look at what's been happening to Rebecca Bradley. A real judge, by the way. Somebody who has the restraint, the integrity, the fidelity to the written Constitution. That's what we need.
