

Disparities Get Worse With Adverse U.S. Supreme Court Decision. Report, to be released Wednesday, delves into causes and policy solutions.

WISCONSIN - Citizen Action of Wisconsin will release the latest in a series of reports documenting vast differences between Minnesota and Wisconsin in the cost for health insurance on the individual marketplace.

The report, A Tale of Two States 2015: Why Wisconsin's Health Insurance Individual Marketplace Premiums are Dramatically Higher than Minnesota's , will delve into the causes of this rate disparity.

New to this report will be an examination of the impact on consumers in Wisconsin of the potential U.S. Supreme Court decision in the case of King v. Burwell.

The report will also provide local level data, making it possible to compare each Wisconsin metro area to health insurance costs in Minnesota, and the relative impact of the potential Supreme Court decision.

Citizen Action will release the new report, A Tale of Two States 2015: Why Wisconsin's Health Insurance Individual Marketplace Premiums are Dramatically Higher than Minnesota's , on Wednesday, April 8th, 2015, at 10:30 AM during a media call.
