MILWAUKEE - Wisconsin Rep. Glenn Grothman has always stood out, even within the GOP, f or his extreme views and statements , so it only makes sense that Sen. Ted Cruz touted the congressman's endorsement prior to last night's Wisconsin presidential primary.

At Cruz's victory party, a Milwaukee television reporter asked Grothman why he thinks the GOP has a chance to win Wisconsin in the general election, since no Republican has won the state since 1984. Grothman replied by arguing that "Hillary Clinton is about the weakest candidate the Democrats have ever put up and now we have voter ID and I think voter ID is going to make a little bit of a difference as well."
