MILWAUKEE - We discuss the retirement of David Prosser from the Wisconsin Supreme Court and Scott Walker's ability to appoint a successor who will not face election until 2020.

We also talk about Walker blaming the photo ID lawsuit for a lack of state funding for a public education campaign; Rep. Jesse Kremer says gender restrictions on school bathrooms are to protect women and "progressive activists have finally blatantly, and unintentionally, unveiled their real war on women;" Labor scores victories on "Right to Work" and Menards; New study shows teacher shortage; and Paul Ryan asks millennials to give "The Party of Trump" a chance.
