Wisconsin now has one of the lowest unemployment rates in its history.

MADISON, Wis. — President Biden started his first day in office with a 6.4 percent unemployment rate and dismal job creation numbers left behind by his predecessor. Now, one year later, with President Biden at the helm, the economy has grown faster than it has in decades. Over 6.4 million jobs were added in the last year, unemployment claims are down to a level not seen since 1969, and the unemployment rate has plummeted to 3.9 percent — a number that wasn't expected until 2026.

Thanks to President Biden and Governor Evers, Wisconsin now has one of the lowest unemployment rates in its history at 3% — that's one of the lowest in the country — and one of the highest labor participation rates in the nation.

These jobs didn't appear out of thin air — in Wisconsin, President Biden's American Rescue Plan ensured that Governor Evers had the funds needed to lead the Badger State into a stronger economic recovery.
