Improved voting site accessibility, a screen-reader accessible absentee ballot, and uniform poll worker training would be big help say nonpartisan group.

MADISON - The League of Women Voters of Wisconsin (LWVWI) recommends changes to improve the voting experience for elderly voters and voters with disabilities while a report released by the Wisconsin Elections Commission (WEC) outlines measures that have improved the accessibility of Wisconsin's polling places,

It is clear the WEC has worked closely with disability advocacy groups and several Wisconsin clerks to take strides to make elections more accessible despite the pandemic. However, despite these efforts the report makes it apparent that accessibility continues to be an issue at polling sites across the state.
