

Democrats grow nervous over primary delays

Written by The Hill Press

Sunday, 22 March 2020 09:33 - Last Updated Tuesday, 24 March 2020 09:40

Express desire for closure to the primaries and getting on with the business of beating Donald Trump.

WASHINGTON, DC - Democrats are increasingly nervous about the coronavirus pandemic upending the Democratic primary calendar.

As more and more states postpone their primaries — delaying their elections as far back as June — some Democrats say that it will make the job of defeating President Trump more difficult.

Read the full story here